INTRODUCTION

The Graduate Studies in History Handbook provides new and enrolled students with a summary of the graduate history degree program requirements. It supplements general Georgia State University College of Arts and Sciences graduate program policy information and requirements.

Although the Director of Graduate Studies in History and the Office of Graduate Services attempt to advise and remind students of program requirement and deadline, it is the student's responsibility to understand and meet these requirements and deadlines as outlined in the Graduate Catalog for the University.

Handbook Last Update – August 7, 2017

ADMISSION CRITERIA AND PROCEDURAL RULES

There are four categories of admission: Full Graduate Status, Nondegree, Special Status and Transient.

Master of Arts – Requirements for Full Graduate Status Admission

1. An undergraduate major in history or its equivalent, which includes survey courses in both American and European history. Additional course work may be required if the department deems previous undergraduate work inadequate for graduate study in history.
2. Acceptable scores on the General (Aptitude) Test of the Graduate Record Examination.
3. A high standard of undergraduate achievement, especially in the major.
4. A statement of the applicant's educational and professional goals.
5. A writing sample.
6. Three letters of recommendation from faculty members (preferably in history) with whom the applicant has studied.
7. Official transcripts of all previous college and graduate level work.

Doctor of Philosophy - Requirements for Full Graduate Status Admission

1. A high standard of undergraduate achievement, in undergraduate and graduate work, especially in the major field.
2. Ordinarily, the M.A. degree in history. Additional course work may be required if the department deems previous graduate work inadequate for Ph.D. study in history.
3. Acceptable scores on the General (Aptitude) Test of the Graduate Record Examination.
4. Foreign Language skills deemed adequate by the department. This will normally include evidence of proficiency in at least one foreign language.
5. Positive evidence of research aptitude and skill, such as the M.A. thesis, and a sample of the applicant's research and written work.
6. A statement of the applicant's educational and professional goals.
7. Recommendations from three faculty members (preferably in history), who have had the student in graduate courses.
8. Official transcripts of all previous college and graduate work.

Master of Arts/Doctor of Philosophy Combined Dual Degree – Requirements for Full Graduate Status Admission

The department offers a “fast track” combined degree program to highly qualified candidates. Admission requirements for the M.A./Ph.D. combined degree program are the same as for the Ph.D. track (omitting the M.A. in history), with the following additions:

1. An overall Grade Point Average of at least 3.5.
2. A Grade Point Average in the major of at least 3.8.
3. A score in the 90th percentile or higher on the Graduate Record Exam.

B. A. in History with the M.A. in History Dual Degree

The Department of History in the College of Arts and Sciences offers a B.A./M.A. Dual Degree program in History for students at Georgia State University only. The program will normally take five years to complete, by which time a student will have earned a Bachelor of Arts in History and a Master of Arts in History. The program requires two applications: the first is an application that will confirm eligibility to pursue the dual degree program and take graduate-level courses while completing the undergraduate major in history; the second is the formal application for admission to the M.A. program in History. A complete description of the undergraduate component of this dual-degree program, including admissions and degree requirements, can be found in the University's Undergraduate catalog.

Students accepted into the B.A./M.A. dual-degree program may enter the thesis or non-thesis degree track. The degree requirements for each track/concentration are the same as those listed above, except that four 6000-8000 level courses completed with a B+ or better as an undergraduate may apply to the M.A. degree course requirements. Completion of a foreign language (2002 level or higher) with a grade of B or better will fulfill the language requirement for the M.A. component of the B.A./M.A. dual-degree.

Nondegree Status Admission

Nondegree Status is provided for students who wish to take a limited number of graduate courses related to their academic or professional backgrounds, but not leading to an advanced degree. Students seeking admission with Nondegree Status should submit a completed application, application fee, transcripts of all colleges attended, and a list of courses they wish to take. Applications must be received within normal deadlines set by the College of Arts and Sciences and the Department of History. Courses taken in this status will generally not apply toward any subsequent degree. A student is admitted to this status at the option of the History Department and when adequate facilities are available. Applicants for the Nondegree Status should consult the departmental Director of Graduate Studies to determine any additional requirements or policies that pertain to Nondegree Status admission. Admission to Nondegree Status does not warrant or secure admission to any degree program.

Special Graduate Status Admission

Sometimes the History Department's Graduate Program Committee will admit an applicant under the special graduate status category. Special Graduate Status may be given to applicants who show promise but do not qualify for full graduate status at the time they apply. Special Graduate Status may require a student to take additional preparatory classes, maintain a minimum GPA in the first year, or meet other conditions set by the Graduate Program Committee or the Director of Graduate Studies in order to obtain Full Graduate Status. These expectations or conditions are specified in the letter of admission. Students who fail to meet the conditions of conditional admission in the terms specified in their admission letter will be dismissed from the graduate program.

Transient Status Admission

A student seeking admission as a transient student must be a graduate student in good standing at another institution. Admission requirements include a completed application, application fee, a list of desired courses, and a letter of good standing from the graduate dean or registrar at the student's institution. Admission to Transient Status is for one semester only on a space-available basis. A student not in good standing or one who is ineligible to return to his/her home institution will not be admitted. No guarantee is made that a transient student will be able to secure the courses desired. The reporting of grades earned to the student's institution is the responsibility of the student. The student should consult the current Graduate Catalog for other restrictions.

International Students

A special information pamphlet for international students is available upon request from the Office of Graduate Services that indicates the degree programs available, admission requirements, fees, and other basic information helpful to applicants from other countries.

In addition to meeting the regular admission requirements, prospective international students must demonstrate proficiency in the English Language by taking the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL).

An international student whose native language is not English and who demonstrates proficiency in English on the appropriate examination may be exempted from the foreign language requirement.

Application Deadlines

The department's application deadlines are below. Note that applications for assistantships are accepted only for fall semester. The department accepts applications to the Ph. D. program only for fall semester and does not accept any applications for summer term.

Application deadline for admission with assistantships

Fall Semester	February 15 th of the previous Spring (M.A. & Ph.D.)

Application deadline for admission without assistantships

Changing Semester of Application

Applicants who do not complete their application files by the appropriate application deadline may request that their applications be considered for the following semester. Such requests must be made in writing to the Office of Graduate Services. Applicants who request a change in the date of entry on their application for more than one semester or who request a change in the degree or major area for which they applied must submit a new application and fee to the Office of Graduate Services.

Changing Semester of Entry

Admission for the graduate program in History is valid only for the semester and the degree specified in the letter of acceptance. An applicant who is admitted and does not intend to enroll should notify the Office of Graduate Services in writing of this decision as soon as possible. Applicants may request that their acceptance be updated for one semester, and this request should be made in writing to the Office of Graduate Services. Applicants who request an update of their acceptance must submit written notification of any change in information that has occurred since the initial application was submitted. The Department of History reserves the right to review the application materials again. Applicants who wish to update their acceptance beyond one semester must submit a new application and fee.

ADMINISTRATIVE POLICIES

Advisement

All students will be assigned a faculty mentor when they begin the program. The mentor is intended to be a contact person who can provide general advice and guidance on graduate school and the history program until a student chooses an adviser. A mentor is not the same as an adviser, but students may request that the mentor become their adviser. The adviser should be chosen by the student on the basis of academic expertise, and if the faculty member agrees to serve as adviser, he or she will supervise a student's thesis or dissertation. Students are encouraged to identify and get to know the faculty in their areas of interests and to begin working with their adviser as soon as possible to prepare for exams, the thesis/dissertation proposal, etc. Until a student secures an adviser, advisement will be done by the mentor or the Director of Graduate Studies.

Course Load and Continuous Enrollment

The maximum course load for graduate students is five courses per semester. Generally, three courses is deemed the normal course load. Students who hold graduate research or teaching assistantships and receive a tuition waiver are required to be registered for a minimum number of hours for every semester that they hold a GRA or GTA position (18 hours during Fall and Spring semesters for M.A./Ph.D. students; 9 hours during the Summer semester for M.A. students and 15 hours during the Summer semester for Ph.D. students).

To remain in compliance, graduate students must register for at least a total of six semester hours of course work during any period of three consecutive terms (Fall, Spring, Summer) until completion of degree. In order to graduate, students must be registered in the program of study during the semester they finish degree requirements for graduation. Students who do not register for an entire year (12 months) and are not on official leave or covered by other exceptions will be made inactive in the program, and if they wish to continue, are required to apply for reentry. Re-acceptance into the program is not guaranteed. Reentering students are subject to the regulations of the Graduate Catalog and the degree program current at the time of reentry. Time limits for all academic requirements will remain unchanged. Exceptions or adjustments to the requirements of continuous enrollment necessitate appeal to the Graduate Petitions Board or official approval for a leave of absence.

Transfer Credit

A maximum of six hours of approved graduate credit from other institutions may be accepted toward a master's degree program and a maximum of thirty semester hours may be accepted toward a doctoral program. Transfer credit must be approved no later than the end of the second semester of full graduate status. The acceptance of transfer credit is not automatic; it must be approved by the Director of Graduate Studies, the Graduate Program Committee, and the Associate Dean. Students requesting transfer credit must petition the Director of Graduate Studies in writing and, if approval is granted, submit a Request for Transfer of Graduate Course Credit Form to the Office of Graduate Services.

Grades

In most graduate courses, the grades, A, B, C, D (including +/-), F, I, W, and WF are awarded. However, in some graduate history courses (such as HIST 8999 and 9999 courses), grades will be awarded as "IP" (In Progress), "S" (Satisfactory) or "U" (Unsatisfactory) depending on research progress. While these hours are not included in the student's GPA, unsatisfactory performance is considered a serious matter. Students earning a "U" in two consecutive semesters of thesis or dissertation research may be subject to dismissal. Although students must have a "B"/3.0 average to merit the award of a graduate degree, the Department of History strongly recommends that students work to achieve "A"s in most of their coursework. Normally, students should strive to maintain a GPA of 3.5 or above. Failure to do so may result in a negative annual evaluation. The Department of History will warn students who make a grade lower than B that another low grade will result in their dismissal from the graduate program. See Graduate Student Performance Evaluation, Appendix III.

It is possible for a student to receive a grade of "I" (Incomplete) if the student had completed satisfactorily a substantial portion of the coursework but for nonacademic reasons beyond the student's control was unable to meet the full course requirements. The awarding of an Incomplete is done at the discretion of the professor and is not a prerogative of the student. The university requires that the grade of "I" must be removed by the end of the next academic term after the "I" is assigned if the student is enrolled that term. If the student is not enrolled during the next term, the "I" must be removed no later than the end of the second academic term after the "I" was assigned, regardless of whether the student is enrolled or not. Failure to follow this procedure will result in the "I" being automatically changed to a grade of "F."

Students who withdraw after the midpoint of each semester will receive a "WF" except in cases of hardship as approved by the instructor's academic dean in consultation with the Dean of Students. The student should petition the Dean for Student Services for relief due to extenuating circumstances resulting in undue hardship. Once the petition is approved the student is eligible to receive a "W" if he or she was doing passing work at the time of the withdrawal.

Computation of Cumulative Grade Point Average

The assignment of quality points is as follows: "A", 4; "B", 3; "C", 2; "D", 1; "F", 0. Plus and minus grades raise and lower the quality points for the respective letter grade by .3 quality points.

In determining the cumulative grade-point average, the total number of quality points is divided by the total number of hours carried.

Hours of credit earned for courses assigned either the grade of "I" (Incomplete), "IP" (In Progress), "S" (Satisfactory), "U" (Unsatisfactory), "W" (Withdrawal), "V" (Audit) and "NR" (Not Reported) are not included in the computation of the cumulative grade-point average.

Academic Warning and Dismissal

A graduate student whose cumulative grade-point average falls below 3.0 at the end of a semester will receive a warning from the Office of Graduate Services. If at the end of the next 18 semester hours of enrollment a 3.0 cumulative grade-point average is not achieved, the student will be withdrawn by the Office of Graduate Services.

Ph.D. students are also expected to make regular and timely progress in the program. Appendix III provides some guidelines for completion of critical milestones in a student's course of study. Students, with the assistance of their adviser and/or the Director of Graduate Studies, should plan their individual program with these goals in mind. Failure to meet these milestones in a timely manner may result in probation or dismissal.

Ph.D. Evaluations and Review

Ph.D. students will be evaluated annually in the spring semester. The review will be based on evaluations from coursework, evaluations of GTA work when applicable, and the student's own annual report. The review will be undertaken by the Director of Graduate Studies and a student's adviser (either the mentor assigned upon entry into the program or the dissertation adviser once s/he has secured one). The primary goal of the review is to assess each student's performance and progress in the program in order to better assist and guide each student as part of the advisement process. Guidelines for completing annual reports, expected progress guidelines, and the department's evaluation procedures are discussed in more detail in Appendices III, IV and V.

Plagiarism

The preparation and presentation of formal papers is a vital exercise at all levels of graduate education. Such papers are intended to guide the student in the development of skills in locating, evaluating, and recording information and in digesting, composing, and explaining his/her findings. It is the most completely developed form of independent study and, if properly done, requires students to organize their thoughts, to relate facts to ideas, and to appreciate the intellectual demands of intensive investigation.

Students who evade the effort required to develop these skills damage their own education. Plagiarism -- claiming as one's own the words and ideas of another person -- damages not only the student but other fellow students as well. It will be the policy of all members of this department to assign the grade of "F" for each piece of work submitted by any student which is, in fact, not that student's own work. Further action shall be at the discretion of the professor. See Appendix VI for the History Department's statement on academic honesty and examples of plagiarism.

Language Requirement

A candidate for the M.A. in History must complete a reading knowledge examination in a second language as soon as possible after admission to the graduate program. Students entering the doctoral program in History must also complete a reading knowledge examination in a second language. However, if the student's adviser deems that the student should complete an additional foreign language for their research, then the student must complete that requirement for their program.

The language requirement must be satisfied by passing an examination administered by the Department of World Languages and Cultures or by completing an approved readings course offered by that department, or another such department approved by the Director of Graduate Studies, with a grade of "B" or better. An international student whose native language is not English and who demonstrates a proficiency in English on the appropriate examination may be exempted from the language requirement. For further details, please see the Director of Graduate Studies or Graduate Coordinator.

Completion of Degree Requirements

All credits presented for the Master's degree must have been earned within seven calendar years of the date of admission, while all credits presented for the Doctor of Philosophy degree must have been earned within ten years of the date of admission.

Students who fail to complete requirements within the limits specified by the College of Arts and Sciences may file a Petition for Deviation with the Office of Graduate Services of the College of Arts and Sciences. Petition forms are available on the Office of Graduate Services website.

Reentry Students

Former students of Georgia State University who were not registered at Georgia State University for regular courses during the previous 12 months are required to file a reentry application with the Office of Graduate Services by the deadline published in the appropriate semester Schedule of Classes bulletin. Students who have attended other colleges and/or universities must have official transcripts of all work completed sent to the Office of the Registrar prior to the reentry deadline for the appropriate semester.

Graduation

Student must apply for graduation with the Graduation Office at least two semesters prior to the semester in which they expect to graduate.

Master of Arts: Thesis Option

1. Course Requirements: M.A. students will complete at least nine (9) graduate level courses in History or in a related subject and declare one major field, chosen from the department's list of major fields. The distribution of the courses to meet these requirements is described below:

a. Core Curriculum: The core curriculum requires completion of four courses, including:

History 7000: Introduction to Historical Methods/Theory

History 7050: Introduction to Graduate Studies and Pedagogy (or History 7045)

History 7060: Research Seminar

And one of the following (in the student's major field):

History 7010: Issues and Interpretations in U.S. History

History 7020: Issues and Interpretations in European History

History 7030: Issues and Interpretations in World History

History 7040: Issues and Interpretations in Public History

Students who do not intend to teach after graduation may petition the Director of Graduate Studies to replace History 7050 with History 7045, a one-hour version of the course that omits pedagogical content.

b. The Major Field: Three courses are required to fulfill the major field. One of these courses may be the Issues and Interpretations course appropriate to the field (History 7010, 7020, 7030, or 7040). The core research seminar (and another may be the research seminar (History 7060). The other courses should be electives related to the major field, which may be in the department of history or another academic department.

c. Geographic Distribution: In addition to the regular M.A. requirements, students whose major field is in US history must also complete one course each in (a) European and (b) African, Asian, Latin American, or Middle Eastern history. Students whose major field is in European history must also complete one course each in (a) US and (b) African, Asian, Latin American, or Middle Eastern history. This requirement may be met in part by taking the appropriate 7000 level course.

d. Electives: Any remaining courses necessary to fulfill the nine-course requirement are electives.

e. Directed Readings Courses: Students may take up to two directed readings courses to fulfill their degree requirements and may petition the Director of Graduate Studies for authorization to take more than two.

f. First Year Track: All students should take 7050 in their first semester or study and 7000 in their second semester, when possible.

2. Language Requirement: Demonstration of reading proficiency in one foreign language through successful completion of a graduate language course (with a grade of B or better) or successful completion of a reading knowledge examination.
3. Comprehensive Examination: The comprehensive examination should be taken within one semester after completion of coursework. The examination may be written or oral; the format will be determined by the major adviser in consultation with the student. The exam will test knowledge of the student's major field and coursework, including the core curriculum. A committee that consists of the student's main adviser and two other faculty members with whom the student has taken coursework will conduct the exam. Exam committees will be nominated by the student and approved by the Director of Graduate Studies on behalf of the Chair of the department. The department encourages students preparing for exams to discuss reading lists and exam content with all committee members. If failed, the examination may be repeated once following a minimum interval of three months. A student who fails the examination a second time will be dismissed from the program.
4. Continuous Enrollment: In order to stay in compliance with the university's policy on continuous enrollment, students must maintain enrollment totaling six (6) hours or more over all consecutive three-semester periods. Students must be registered for a minimum of one hour during the term of their graduation.
5. Master's Thesis: Requirements for the master's thesis include:
  - a. At least six hours of History 8999: Thesis Research. Students may take additional units of 8999 to maintain enrollment in the program for up to two semesters as they prepare their thesis.
  - b. A thesis prospectus, approved by a committee consisting of the student's main adviser and a second reader. See Appendix II for a set of prospectus guidelines.
  - c. A thesis, approved by a committee consisting of a director and a second reader. After the committee approves the thesis, the student must submit the signed signature page to the Office of Graduate Services of the College of Arts and Sciences. The Office of Graduate Services will then send the student a link to upload the final version of their thesis to the office's server. Individual students are responsible for ensuring that their thesis is in the proper format and for securing approval of the format from the Office of Graduate Services. A guide for digital thesis and dissertation preparation and submission formats and submissions is available from the Office of Graduate Services.
6. Graduation: Students must also complete the application for graduation before the deadline established by the University. Detailed information on graduation procedure is available on the Office of Graduate Services website and students who intend to graduate should consult with the department's Graduate Coordinator to ensure they have fulfilled all requirements. Students must be registered for a minimum of one hour during the term of their graduation.

Master of Arts: Non-Thesis Option

- 1. Core Requirements: Non-thesis MA students may substitute an additional elective to replace 7060. Otherwise they are required to complete all the requirements for the thesis option except for those listed under section 5, Master's Thesis, above.
- 2. Electives: To meet the ten required courses, non-thesis students may take courses in history or a related department. When possible, these courses should be chosen to form a minor field. Minor fields can be selected from the list above or constructed in consultation with the student's adviser.
- 3. Written Comprehensive Examination: Non-thesis students must take a second written comprehensive examination in addition to the exam required of thesis students. The examination should consist of two essays, to be administered by an examination committee which includes the adviser and one additional faculty member chosen from the oral examination committee. The committee members will work together to design and grade the essays.
- 4. Research Paper or Substantive Written Work: In lieu of the thesis, research competence must be demonstrated on the basis of a research paper or other substantive piece of written work. A committee of at least two members of the faculty, of which the student's adviser will serve as chair, will determine the acceptability of the paper. Once the committee has approved the paper, the non-thesis signature page, signed by the student's adviser, must be submitted to the Office of Graduate Services by the appropriate deadline.

World History Concentration

The History Department offers a concentration in World History at the M.A. level. This concentration combines the theoretical and empirical frameworks of world history with opportunities to conduct more detailed research within chosen areas of interest. Students will apply theoretical approaches and empirical methodologies that support the comparative study of societies and cultures as well as the interconnections among different world regions. The requirements are the same as those for a regular M.A. thesis or non-thesis option, with several specific stipulations as noted below.

The World History Program Director will advise students on courses qualifying as world history. Students may petition the World History Committee for the inclusion of other courses with conspicuous world dimensions. See Appendix I for a Checklist of Requirements.

1. The five core curriculum history courses must include History 7030, Issues and Interpretations in World History.
2. The major field must be World History, with a focus approved by the student's major adviser. Courses in the major field must demonstrate a prominent world dimension. History 7030 may be applied to the major field.
3. Geographic Distribution: In addition to the regular M.A. requirements, students completing the world history concentration must also complete one course each in (a) U.S.; (b) European; and (c) African, Asian, Latin American, or Middle Eastern history. Either the U.S. or the European course should have a world dimension.
4. The MA thesis must have a prominent world dimension.
5. For the non-thesis option, students must declare a minor field in some aspect of world history, approved by the major adviser.

Master of Heritage Preservation/ Certificate Program

The Department offers the master's degree in Heritage Preservation. This program is divided into two tracks of study: one in Historic Preservation and one in Public History. Both programs are designed to train professionals in the fields of cultural resource management and the interpretation of history to a broad audience. The department also offers a certificate program, with a concentration in historic preservation or public history. The Certificate Program requires less coursework than the master's degree and is available to students enrolled in graduate degree programs and in good academic standing at Georgia State University in such programs as history, anthropology, geography, urban studies, public administration, and real estate.

For further information about the Heritage Preservation Program and requirements, contact the Director of the program, Richard Laub.

Doctor of Philosophy

1. Course Requirements: Students will complete at least ten graduate level courses in history or a related subject and declare one major and two minor fields, chosen from the department's list of major and minor fields. The distribution of these courses to meet these requirements is described below.

a. Core Curriculum: Four required core curriculum courses. These four courses must include:

History 7000: Introduction to Historical Methods/Theory

History 7050: Introduction to Graduate Studies and Pedagogy (or History 7045)

History 7060: Research Seminar

And one of the following (in the student's major field):

History 7010: Issues and Interpretations in U.S. History

History 7020: Issues and Interpretations in European History

History 7030: Issues and Interpretations in World History

History 7040: Issues and Interpretations in Public History

Students who do not intend to teach after graduation may petition the Director of Graduate Studies to replace History 7050 with History 7045, a one-hour version of the course that omits pedagogical content.

b. Major Field: To complete the major field requirements requires completion of at least three courses related to the focus of the major field, including 7010, 7020, 7030, or 7040. The other two courses are electives. History 7060 may not be used to fulfill major field requirements. Students should name a specialization within their major field (for example, 19th & 20th Century U.S./U.S. South; Global and Regional/Brazil and South America; Modern Europe/Modern France).

c. Minor Fields: To complete the minor field requirements requires the completion of two courses in each minor field, related to the focus of that minor field. These courses are electives but may be satisfied with 7010, 7020, 7030, or 7040.

d. Geographical and Chronological Distribution: One of the minor fields should demonstrate a geographical specialization outside the major field; the other should demonstrate a chronological focus outside the major field.

e. Electives: Any remaining courses necessary to fulfill the ten-course requirement are electives.

f. Directed Readings Courses: Students may take up to three directed readings courses to fulfill their degree requirements.

g. Students Who Earned an M.A. in History from GSU: Students who enter the Ph.D. program with an M.A. in History earned at Georgia State may replace two HIST 7000- level core courses with two sections of HIST 8890 (Special Topics in History).

2. Language Requirement: Demonstration of reading proficiency in a foreign language through successful completion of a graduate language course (with a grade of B or better) or successful completion of a reading knowledge examination.
3. Residency: A student in the doctoral program is required to be in residence for four semesters, two of which must be consecutive. In each of the four semesters, the student must register for at least eight hours of coursework.
4. Continuous Enrollment: In order to stay in compliance with the university's policy on continuous enrollment, students must maintain enrollment totaling six hours or more over all consecutive three-semester periods.
5. General Comprehensive Examination: Upon completion of the language requirement and the coursework in the doctoral program, the doctoral student will be required to successfully complete comprehensive written examinations in his/her major and minor fields and one oral examination, which may cover content from and major and minor fields.
  - a. Exam Committees: Major and minor field exams will normally be administered by a committee of two professors in that field, chosen by the student and the adviser, in consultation with the Director of Graduate Studies. The oral examination will be administered by a committee of at least four professors, including the adviser and others chosen from the written exam committees. The members of each individual examination committee will determine whether the student has passed or failed that specific exam and a unanimous vote of the committee is required to pass. If the student fails one specific exam, s/he has not passed the general comprehensive exam and cannot advance to candidacy (See repeat examinations below).
  - b. Exam schedule: Comprehensive examination will be scheduled twice a year in the Fall and Spring semesters (in October and March); the specific days and times will be announced at least one month in advance. The student will normally complete the oral examination within two weeks of the written examination.
  - c. Repeat Examinations: Should a student fail any of the comprehensive examinations, the relevant committee shall determine the conditions under which the student will be permitted to re-take the examination or portions thereof in accordance the regulations of the Graduate Division of the College of Arts and Sciences. The examination may be repeated once following a minimum interval of six months. A student who fails the examination a second time will be subject to termination. The examination must be passed at least one academic year prior to the conferral of the degree.

6. Dissertation Prospectus and Prospectus Defense: On the successful completion of the written and oral parts of the general examination, the student will be required to submit and defend a prospectus of the dissertation to a scheduled meeting of members of the dissertation committee.
  - a. Dissertation Committee: The dissertation committee will consist of at least three professors of the Department of History faculty, including the adviser, who are nominated by the student and approved by the Director of Graduate Studies on behalf of the Department Chair. The student may also nominate additional members from the Department of History, or from appropriate fields and/or institutions outside of the department.
  - b. Dissertation Prospectus: The prospectus will include a carefully prepared and closely reasoned statement or exposition of the topic or subject that the student has chosen to research in consultation with the dissertation adviser. See Appendix II for a guide to the preparation of the prospectus.
  - c. Dissertation Prospectus Defense: An oral defense of the dissertation prospectus will normally follow within six months of exams and will be administered by the dissertation committee.
7. Advancement to Candidacy: After completing the coursework, language, comprehensive examination and dissertation prospectus requirements, the student will be admitted to candidacy for the degree.
8. Dissertation: The student must satisfactorily complete a dissertation and earn not less than twenty hours of credit in History 9999 (Dissertation Research), supervised by the dissertation director.
9. Dissertation Defense: Upon completion of the dissertation, the candidate will be required to pass a final examination, conducted by members of the dissertation committee, which is devoted to a defense of the dissertation.
10. Submission of Dissertation: After the committee approves the dissertation, the student must submit the signed signature page to the Office of Graduate Services. The Office of Graduate Services will then send the student a link to upload the final version of their dissertation to the office's server. Individual students are responsible for ensuring that their dissertation is in the proper format and for securing approval of the format from the Office of Graduate Services. A guide for digital thesis and dissertation preparation and submission formats and submissions is available from the Office of Graduate Services' website.
11. Graduation: Students must also complete the application for graduation before the deadline established by the Office of Graduate Services. Detailed information on graduation procedure is available on the Office of Graduate Services website and students who intend to graduate should consult with the department's Graduate Coordinator to ensure they have fulfilled all requirements. Students must be registered for a minimum of one hour during the term of their graduation.

Master of Arts/Doctor of Philosophy Combined Degree

The requirements for the M.A./Ph.D. degree are the same as for the Ph.D., except in the area of coursework. Students are required to complete at least twelve graduate level courses, which are distributed as follows:

1. Course Requirements: Four required core curriculum courses. These four courses must include:

History 7000: Introduction to Historical Methods/Theory

History 7050: Introduction to Graduate Studies and Pedagogy (or History 7045)

History 7060: Research Seminar

And one of the following (in the student's major field):

History 7010: Issues and Interpretations in U.S. History

History 7020: Issues and Interpretations in European History

History 7030: Issues and Interpretations in World History

History 7040: Issues and Interpretations in Public History

Students who do not intend to teach after graduation may petition the Director of Graduate Studies to replace History 7050 with History 7045, a one-hour version of the course that omits pedagogical content.

2. First Year Track: All students should take 7050 in their first semester of study and 7000 in their second semester, when possible.

3. Major Field: To complete the major field requirements requires completion of at least three courses related to the focus of the major field, including 7010, 7020, 7030, or 7040. The other two courses are electives. History 7060 may not be used to fulfill major field requirements.

4. Minor Fields: To complete the minor field requirements requires the completion of two courses in each minor field, related to the focus of that minor field. These courses are electives but may be satisfied with 7010, 7020, 7030, or 7040. Minor fields must demonstrate temporal, methodological, or geographical diversity from the major field.

5. Electives: Any remaining courses necessary to fulfill the ten-course requirement are electives.

6. Directed Readings: Students may take up to three directed readings courses to fulfill their coursework requirements.

7. Award of M.A. degree: Students may apply to earn a non-thesis M. A. degree on route to completing the doctoral program after completing 10 courses and passing their Ph.D. comprehensive exams, normally in the third year of coursework. Students who wish to leave the program may opt in to the M.A. degree program and may earn a non-thesis or thesis M.A. degree after completing all requirements for that degree.

Thesis and Dissertation Format

The Office of Graduate Services requires that each student assume full responsibility for the correctness in content and form of the thesis or dissertation.

A copy of the Thesis and Dissertation Guidelines which cover such topics as format, style, binding, etc. is available on the Office of Graduate Services website.

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

- 1. Assistantships: Graduate Research Assistantships (GRA) for M.A. and Ph.D. students and Graduate Teaching Assistantships (GTA) for Ph.D. students in the department are available to qualified students in the graduate program. All students with assistantships receive stipends and tuition waivers.

The purpose of the GRA appointment is to provide candidates working toward M.A. or Ph.D. degrees with financial assistance and practical training in both research and teaching. GRA appointments focus more specifically on instructional training. Students may apply for up to two years of GRA support. The normal workload for GRAs is ten hours a week. Individuals holding a GRA will benefit from obtaining experience in both research and teaching, though not necessarily in any given semester. Teaching experience may include giving lectures, leading discussion, assisting with grading, working on syllabi, assisting with History lab, or other activities pertinent to instruction.

The purpose of the GTA appointment is to provide candidates with financial assistance for their studies and practical training in teaching. Students with GTA appointments assist faculty, lead discussion sections and eventually teach classes, usually freshman survey courses. After the first year, during which the student takes a pedagogy course and assists in teaching a class, the obligation is three courses a year, normally one each semester including the summer semester. Appendix VIII describes the expectations the Department holds of Graduate Research and Teaching Assistants.

- 2. Scholarships:

- a. Department Scholarships: Each year the department awards the Joseph O. Baylen Fellowship to an entering M.A. student with an interest in social and cultural history and the Ethel Illges Woodruff Fellowship to an entering M.A. student with an interest in the American South.
- b. George M. Sparks Scholarship Fund: There is no designated amount. Awards are available for graduate and undergraduate study. Students who have worked, or are working while attending college, shall have preference. References from employers are required.
- c. Regent's Opportunity Scholarship: These scholarships are provided by the Board of Regents of the University System for the purpose of recruiting promising minority graduate students. Continued offering of the scholarships is dependent on yearly funding from the Regents. Applicants must be residents of Georgia and complete at least ten hours of appropriate coursework each semester. The scholarships are awarded for the academic year and are in the amounts of $2500 or $5000.

- 3. Student Loans: Several federally subsidized and internal student loans are available to full-time and part-time graduate students. For further information concerning loans, students should contact the Office of Financial Aid.

4. On-Campus Employment:

- a. College Work Study Program: Jobs are available to qualified applicants with federally subsidized wages.
- b. Other Options: For those who do not qualify for college work study, notices about other on-campus positions are available in the Office of Human Resources (1 Park Place, 3rd floor).

APPENDIX II

RECOMMENDED THESIS AND DISSERTATION PROSPECTUS GUIDELINES WITH OUTLINE OF BIBLIOGRAPHIC CATEGORIES

This appendix includes guidelines for graduate students writing a thesis or dissertation prospectus. A master's thesis prospectus is typically ten to fifteen pages including the bibliography, while the dissertation prospectus is often around twenty to twenty-five pages, not including the bibliography. The final requirements for the prospectus may vary, depending on the student's individual program and adviser. The following elements should be included:

I: A statement of the problem or thesis. This section consists of a closely reasoned – but still short and explicit – statement of the central issue you will be taking on in the dissertation. You should consider addressing the “so what?” question head on here. Why should we care? This consideration of the larger importance of the question leads into the following section.

II: Historiography and context. Set the problem in a larger historiographical context. How have previous scholars dealt with the issue? How will your work interact with, challenge, or confront earlier scholarship? This section should not be a catchall of books and articles. You need to divide the scholarship into “lines of scholarly inquiry” and make the case that these various lines converge or intersect on your topic. These historiographical issues, and the way the question is framed, directly lead to questions of source material.

III: Sources. This discussion of historiography is lifeless in the absence of a discussion of the source material that will form the evidentiary basis of the dissertation. What are these sources? Where are they? How will you see them? What type of permission is required to obtain access?

IV: Method and Theory. After providing this detailed description of the source material, offer a critical analysis of the ways you will approach the sources. Address the methods you intend to employ when you confront your source material. Which theoretical models do you imagine you might find useful when framing ways to interpret sources?

V: Provisional outline of chapters. Provide an initial overview of the table of contents as you imagine the project today. This is likely to change, but it is useful to propose – in as detailed a way as possible – a possible framework for the thesis or dissertation.

VI: Schedule. Indicate your plan of work. When will you conduct research? When will you begin to draft the first chapter? When will the entire draft be complete? Advisers typically want to see chapter drafts so that they can offer feedback and criticism on a regular basis. You should also include in your schedule ample time for revisions, for committee members to read and offer comments, and for formatting. Remember that you need to apply for graduation several semesters ahead of time. Be sure to check the College of Arts and Sciences for the most recent guidelines as you are preparing the draft for format review.

VII: Bibliography. Break the bibliography into primary and secondary materials. Follow the Chicago style. See the outline of possible categories below.

APPENDIX III

GRADUATE STUDENT PERFORMANCE AND EVALUATION POLICY

This document describes the History Department’s guidelines for both progress and performance in the Ph.D. program. It describes the timetable for completion of the degree, expectations in terms of levels of performance, the department’s process for monitoring student performance, and the department’s procedures for assisting student progress in the program. Students are required to adhere to the progress guidelines and performance standards of both the College of Arts and Sciences and the Department of History. However, the department also understands that measuring student progress in the program is often an individual matter. The policy below is intended primarily as a guideline to help the Director of Graduate Studies and faculty advisers work together with students to monitor progress, identify and address any potential delays or problems, and provide students with regular feedback.

EXPECTED PROGRESS GUIDELINES

Every student’s progress toward the completion of the degree is determined by a number of unique and individual circumstances; however, the department does expect students to make regular and timely progress in the program. Described below are some guidelines for completion of critical milestones in a student’s course of study. The student, with the assistance of his/her adviser and/or the Director of Graduate Studies, should plan a student’s program with these goals in mind. Student progress will be observed within an annual review process, as described below, which is intended to assist students in achieving these goals. An inability to meet these goals should be regarded as a cause for concern. If students fail to meet these deadlines, they will be required to meet with the Director of Graduate Studies and/or their adviser to propose appropriate remedial action. In every case, students will have an opportunity to propose and take remedial action before they are considered subject to dismissal. Failure to meet these guidelines or satisfy the department’s requirements for remedies, however, may be regarded as a failure to maintain the levels of academic performance required by the department and, as such, may be considered grounds for scholastic termination by the College of Arts and Sciences.

Full-Time Students

PhD students entering with an MA degree will normally be expected to complete these milestones according to the following calendar:

Milestone	Expected Within	Probation After	Dismissal After
Complete Coursework	3 years	4 years	5 years
Complete Comprehensive Exams	Within 6 months of completing coursework	More than 6 months of completing coursework	1 year after completing coursework
Dissertation Proposal	Within 6 months of completing comps	1 year after comps	18 months after comps
Complete Dissertation	Within 3 years of proposal defense	4 years after proposal defense	5 years after proposal defense

Part-time Students

Students may enter the program recognized as holding part-time status. However, this status must be formally requested by the student when s/he enters the program or before their status may change from that of a full- to a part-time student. In either case, a petition for part-time status must be approved by the Graduate Program Committee. A change to part-time status must be approved by the graduate committee prior to completion of the first annual review in which the student's progress as a part-time student will be evaluated. In other words, a student cannot change from full- to part-time status without prior approval of a petition by the Graduate Program Committee, and until such approval is granted, the student will be evaluated in terms of the milestones described above. Part-time status does not exempt a student from the university's requirements for continuous enrollment.

If the student's progress indicates probation, the student will receive notice of this from the Director of Graduate Studies (this is termed a scholastic warning by the College of Arts and Sciences). In consultation with her/his adviser and/or the Director of Graduate Studies, the student is required to propose a relevant plan for remedial action. At this point the student will also submit in writing to the Director of Graduate Studies an account documenting the relevant remedial action s/he intends to take, which will be added to a student's record.

If the student's situation indicates a dismissal action, the student will receive notice of this from the Director of Graduate Studies. Students may appeal the pending dismissal action by petitioning the Graduate Program Committee but must do so before the end of the semester in which their progress first indicated initiation of a dismissal action. To appeal dismissal, students should submit to the Director of Graduate Studies an individualized plan, supported by their adviser, detailing dates by which they intend to remedy any existing problem(s).

ANNUAL STUDENT REPORTS AND REVIEW OF STUDENTS

Ph.D. students will be evaluated annually in the spring semester. The review will be based on evaluations from coursework and/or evaluations of GTA work, and the student's own annual report. The review will be undertaken by the Graduate Program Committee, the Director of Graduate Studies and a student's adviser (either the mentor assigned upon entry into the program or the dissertation adviser once s/he has secured one). The primary goal of the review is to assess each student's performance and progress in the program in order to better assist and guide each student as part of the advisement process. All aspects of the student's activities and performance are reviewed, including progress, academic performance, professionalism, and academic and/or professional conduct, where applicable.

On March 1, each student will submit an annual report describing his/her academic work during the previous twelve months and plans for the remainder of the current academic year. This report should be no more than 250 words. Every student is strongly encouraged to work with his/her adviser in preparing the report and to obtain feedback from the adviser before a draft is finalized and submitted to the Graduate Coordinator. Students will receive written feedback on the results and will have an opportunity to discuss these results with the Director of Graduate Studies and their adviser. If significant problems or weaknesses are identified in the course of the review, this is an opportunity to propose corrective action. In those instances where the Director of Graduate Studies and/or the adviser judges a student's performance to be unsatisfactory, the letter of evaluation will include notice of probationary status (i.e., scholastic warning). This is independent of any scholastic warning occasioned by failure to meet progress guidelines.

Students receiving such a warning will be evaluated again at the end of the following fall semester. If at that time the faculty judges that the circumstances have not changed and the student's performance is again rated as unsatisfactory, a dismissal action will be initiated. Students may appeal their pending dismissal.

GRADES AND GRADE POINT AVERAGE

The College of Arts and Science and the Department of History require that students maintain a grade point average (GPA) of at least 3.0. Regulations stipulate that a graduate student is subject to dismissal for failure to achieve a 3.0 cumulative GPA by the end of the next 18 semester hours of enrollment in letter-graded courses after the GPA has fallen below 3.0.

SATISFACTORY AND UNSATISFACTORY GRADES

The department grades certain courses only as satisfactory (S) or unsatisfactory (U). While these hours are not included in the student's GPA, unsatisfactory performance is considered a serious matter.

Examinations and dissertation hours earn grades of S or U. Students graded U on an examination may be required to retake all or part of that examination depending on the decision of the department. Students earning U in two consecutive semesters of thesis or dissertation may be subject to dismissal.

The department follows the current procedures and policies of the College of Arts and Sciences regarding grade complaints and appeals.

DISMISSALS AND APPEALS

It is the College of Arts and Sciences that ultimately assumes the responsibility of both the admission and dismissal of students. Nevertheless, the student is subject to department as well as college standards.

When a department standard is violated, the Director of Graduate Studies will initiate the dismissal action. This will occur only after the student has failed to address or correct the deficiency during any specified probationary period.

When a college standard is violated, the Associate Dean for the Social Sciences will initiate the dismissal action. As is true at the departmental level, this will occur only after the student has failed to correct the deficiency during any specified probationary period.

DISMISSAL

Reasons for dismissal by the department include:

1. An unsatisfactory annual evaluation in fall semester after an unsatisfactory annual evaluation the previous spring semester;
2. Grades of U in two successive semesters of dissertation work;
3. Failure to pass the Ph.D. comprehensive examination on the second attempt;
4. Failure to maintain a GPA of 3.0 or better after a probationary period of 18 semester hours;
5. Failure to successfully defend the Ph.D. dissertation;
6. Failure to meet standards of the department's standards of academic and/or professional conduct.

APPEAL PROCEDURES

Whatever the specific cause, the student will receive notice from the Director of Graduate Studies that the department is considering dismissal. The student may appeal this in writing to the Director of Graduate Studies; such an appeal must be received within 20 business days of the notice being given. The Graduate Program Committee will consider the appeal. At a meeting called for this purpose the student will have the opportunity to present evidence, including testimony or letters of support from faculty with whom s/he has worked, that s/he is capable of successful completion of the graduate program and that the conditions leading to the dismissal situation represent atypical behavior or the presence of temporary, mitigating circumstances. The committee will inform the student of its decision within 30 days of hearing the appeal.

Actions of the Graduate Program Committee may include but are not necessarily limited to: 1. allowing the dismissal to stand; 2. placing the student on probation and specifying the necessary remedial action; 3. reversing the dismissal notice. The Graduate Program Committee will specify deadlines for any required remedial action.

If the student believes that a decision of the Graduate Program Committee has been arbitrary, capricious, or discriminatory s/he may appeal that decision in writing to the chair of the department within 20 days of the Graduate Committee's decision.

If the student does not appeal the decision of the Graduate Committee, the Director of Graduate Studies will forward the recommendation for dismissal to the Associate Dean for the Social Sciences of the College of Arts and Sciences. The student may then appeal the decision through the normal channels of the College of Arts and Sciences.

GRIEVANCE PROCEDURES

The department follows the current procedures and policies of the College of Arts and Sciences regarding grade appeals and other complaints. Students who believe that they have been treated in an unethical, unprofessional, or unfair manner by university faculty, staff, administrators, or fellow students should act to correct the situation. Several procedures are available to do so. First, students may bring the situation to the attention of their adviser, the Director of Graduate Studies, or the chair of the department. At the college level students may bring their complaint to the attention of the Associate Dean. Students may also discuss their situation with the university's ombudsperson (404-413-2510). Finally, students may follow formal grievance procedures. See the College of Arts and Sciences Student Grievance Policy.

ANNUAL PH.D. STUDENT REPORTS AND EVALUATIONS

Annual Ph.D. student reports are due every spring on March 1.

The annual report should be a statement of no more than 250 words summarizing a student's academic and professional accomplishments for the preceding academic year. Students should prepare the statement in consultation with their adviser or mentor.

Students should include all activities related to their degree program. Activities may include, but are not limited to: progress toward the completion of degree requirements such as courses completed, securing an adviser, taking exams, completing a prospectus or meeting the language requirement; work in progress such as preparing for exams, preparing a prospectus or conducting research; professional activities such as public history projects, internships, oral histories, membership or participation in professional organizations, or conference presentations. Students may also include other activities related to teaching and service. Teaching activity might include, for example, community service that draws on scholarly expertise, contributions to student groups or activities on campus, or work done under the auspices of AGSUH.

The annual report should be accompanied by a C.V. and a completed checklist of requirements. The report, the C.V., and the completed checklist should be submitted to the Graduate Coordinator no later than March 1.

Students will receive written feedback on the results and will have an opportunity to discuss these results with the Director of Graduate Studies and their adviser. If significant problems or weaknesses are identified in the course of the review, this is an opportunity to propose corrective action. In those instances where the Director of Graduate Studies and/or the adviser judges a student's performance to be unsatisfactory, the letter of evaluation will include notice of probationary status (i.e., scholastic warning).

APPENDIX VI

DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY STATEMENT ON ACADEMIC DISHONESTY

The Department of History supports the University's Policy on Academic Honesty and refers its faculty and students to the full text of this policy (published as section 409 of the Faculty Handbook and as part 4.0 of the Student Code of Conduct in the Student Handbook, and reaffirms parts 1 and 2 of this policy below:

I. Introduction. As members of the academic community, students are expected to recognize and uphold standards of intellectual and academic integrity. The University assumes as a basic and minimum standard of conduct in academic matters that students be honest and that they submit for credit only the products of their own efforts. Both the ideals of scholarship and the need for fairness require that all dishonest work be rejected as a basis for academic credit. They also require that students refrain from any and all forms of dishonorable or unethical conduct related to their academic work. Academic honesty is a core value of the University and all members of the University community are responsible for abiding by the tenets of the policy. Lack of knowledge of this policy is not an acceptable defense to any charge of academic dishonesty. In an effort to foster an environment of academic integrity and to prevent academic dishonesty, students are expected to discuss with faculty the expectations regarding course assignments and standards of conduct.

II. Definitions and Examples. The examples and definitions given below are intended to clarify the standards by which academic honesty and academically honorable conduct are to be judged. The list is merely illustrative of the kinds of infractions that may occur, and it is not intended to be exhaustive. Moreover, the definitions and examples suggest conditions under which unacceptable behavior of the indicated types normally occurs; however, there may be unusual cases that fall outside these conditions which also will be judged unacceptable by the academic community.

A. Plagiarism: Plagiarism is presenting another person's work as one's own. Plagiarism includes any paraphrasing or summarizing of the works of another person without acknowledgment, including the submitting of another student's work as one's own. Plagiarism frequently involves a failure to acknowledge in the text, notes, or footnotes the quotation of the paragraphs, sentences, or even a few phrases written or spoken by someone else. The submission of research or completed papers or projects by someone else is plagiarism, as is the unacknowledged use of research sources gathered by someone else when that use is specifically forbidden by the faculty member. Failure to indicate the extent and nature of one's reliance on other sources is also a form of plagiarism. Any work, in whole or in part, taken from the Internet or other computer-based resource without properly referencing the source (for example, the URL) is considered plagiarism. A complete reference is required in order that all parties may locate and view the original source. Finally, there may be forms of plagiarism that are unique to an individual discipline or course, examples of which should be provided in advance by the faculty member. The student is responsible for understanding the legitimate use of sources, the appropriate ways of acknowledging academic, scholarly or creative indebtedness, and the consequences of violating this responsibility.

B. Cheating on Examinations: Cheating on examinations involves giving or receiving unauthorized help before, during, or after an examination. Examples of unauthorized help include the use of notes, computer-based resources, texts, or crib sheets during an examination (unless specifically approved by the faculty member), or sharing information with another student during an examination (unless specifically approved by the faculty member). Other examples include intentionally allowing another student to view one's own examination and collaboration before or after an examination if such collaboration is specifically forbidden by the faculty member.

C. Unauthorized Collaboration: Submission for academic credit of a work product, or a part thereof, represented as its being one's own effort, which has been developed in substantial collaboration with another person or source, or computer-based resource, is a violation of academic honesty. It is also a violation of academic honesty knowingly to provide such assistance. Collaborative work specifically authorized by a faculty member is allowed.

D. Falsification: It is a violation of academic honesty to misrepresent material or fabricate information in an academic exercise, assignment or proceeding (e.g., false or misleading citation of sources the falsification of the results of experiments or of computer data, false or misleading information in an academic context in order to gain an unfair advantage).

E. Multiple Submissions: It is a violation of academic honesty to submit substantial portions of the same work for credit more than once without the explicit consent of the faculty member(s) to whom the material is submitted for additional credit. In cases in which there is a natural development of research or knowledge in a sequence of courses ...the student is responsible for indicating in writing ...that the current work submitted for credit is cumulative in nature.”

It is the general policy of the Department of History that any course assignment involving plagiarism will receive the grade of “F”. At the discretion of the instructor, the student may also be subject to further academic penalties, including, but not limited to, failure of the course. The student may also be subject to further disciplinary sanctions, including, but not limited to, transcript annotation.

EXAMPLES OF PLAGIARISM

The following are examples of common types of plagiarism. The same rules apply to material drawn from other media, including the Internet.

Original Text: “Although no social revolution occurred in America in the 1770s, the American Revolution could not have unfolded when or as it did without the self-conscious action of urban laboring people from the bottom and middle strata who became convinced that they must either create power where none had existed before or watch their position deteriorate, in both absolute and relative terms.” (from Gary B. Nash, The Urban Crucible: The Northern Seaports and the Origins of the American Revolution, abridged edition, p. 247)

(a) Repeat an author's words without quotation marks and a footnote.

Plagiarism: The American Revolution could not have happened without the self-conscious action of urban laboring people.

Not plagiarism: According to Gary B. Nash, the American Revolution could not have happened “without the self-conscious action of urban laboring people.”<sup>1</sup>

(b) Repeat an author's words with a footnote but still without quotation marks.

Plagiarism: The American Revolution could not have happened without the self-conscious action of urban laboring people.<sup>2</sup>

Not plagiarism: According to one historian, the American Revolution could not have happened “without the self-conscious action of urban laboring people.”<sup>3</sup>

(c) Closely paraphrase an author's words without a footnote.

Plagiarism: No social revolution happened in America in the 1770s, but the Revolution could not have taken place when or as it did without the actions of urban laboring people from the bottom and middle classes who became convinced that they either had to create new power or watch their situations get worse.

Not plagiarism: Quote the original passage directly, using quotation marks and a footnote, or use the attribution style given below in example (d).

(d) Use an idea or interpretation originated by the author without giving him or her credit. Examples of ideas and interpretations include but are not limited to: statements and explanations of cause and effect, opinions about importance of events, opinions about the motives of people or groups of people, and comparative statements.

Plagiarism: The American Revolution was not a social revolution, but it couldn't have happened when it did without the self-conscious actions of urban working people trying to gain new power for themselves to protect their economic positions. (Even though you've summarized the point in your own words, this is still Nash's idea about cause and effect so you need to credit him.)

Not Plagiarism: According to Gary B. Nash, the American Revolution was not a social revolution, but it couldn't have happened when it did without the "self-conscious action" of urban working people trying to gain new power for themselves to protect their economic positions.<sup>4</sup>

(e) Organize your paper in an outline that replicates the order of topics covered over successive paragraphs or pages of an author's work.

If you are unsure about what constitutes plagiarism in your own work, talk to your instructor before you turn in the assignment.

APPENDIX VIII

GUIDELINES FOR GRAS AND GTAS

1. GRAs and GTAs are required to register for 18 hours every semester (Fall and Spring) that they hold an assistantship. During the Summer, Master's students should register for at least 9 hours, while Ph.D. students should register for at least 15 hours.
2. Some of these hours may be thesis or dissertation hours (HIST 8999 or HIST 9999), but until students have completed their coursework, they should be completing a minimum of 2 content courses per term in Fall and Spring.
3. GRAs and GTAs must remain in good academic standing as defined by the College of Arts and Sciences.
4. GTAs are not permitted to teach or work at any other University System of Georgia institution unless they first receive permission from the Graduate Director and obtain subsequent permission from the Presidents of both USG institutions. A form to request permission to work at another USG institution is available from Paula Sorrell, the department's business manager.
5. Even if a GTA secures permission to teach elsewhere, teaching assignments in the Department of History at GSU will take first priority.
6. If a student holding a GRA or GTA takes an incomplete in a course, the coursework must be completed no later than 6 weeks into the following term.
7. GRA and GTA appointments are reviewed annually. Failure to meet the appropriate standards of academic and professional performance may result in nonrenewal.

APPENDIX IX

GRADUATE STUDENT PETITION GUIDELINES

Petition to transfer substitute course credits

- Students requesting transfer credit should submit to the Director of Graduate Studies a Department of History Petition Cover Sheet with accompanying materials, a Request for Transfer of Graduate Course Credit Form, original syllabi for the courses they wish to transfer, and an official transcript from the institution initially granting the academic credit.
- The Request for Transfer of Graduate Course Credit Form can be downloaded from the College of Arts and Sciences Policies and Forms web page.
- MA students may transfer a maximum of six semester hours of approved graduate credit from other institutions to apply to their master's degree program.
- If an MA student wishes to substitute two three hour courses from another institution for two four hour courses at GSU and so transfer a total of eight semester hours, s/he will need to file a separate petition to deviate from graduate catalog regulations that limit transfer hours on the MA level to six hours (see below for information on that petition).
- Doctoral students may transfer a maximum of thirty semester hours of approved graduate credit to apply to their PhD degree program.
- Transfer credits must be approved by the Director of Graduate Studies and the Graduate Program Committee on the department level, and by the Associate Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Petition to Waive Department Course or Program Requirements

- In general, the Department of History discourages petitions to waive course or program requirements, but recognizes that in some cases students may have legitimate reasons for submitting such petitions. For example, the department recognizes that students who do not wish to pursue teaching careers may wish to substitute 7045 for 7050.
- Students seeking to waive course or program requirements should submit to the Graduate Program Committee a Department of History Petition Cover Sheet with accompanying materials.
- Petitions should make a clear case that the requirement has been otherwise satisfied, is outdated, or is not relevant to the student's academic and/or career goals.

Petition to Change Semester of Entry

- Applicants who do not complete their application files by the appropriate application deadline or who wish to delay their semester of entry into the graduate program may request that their applications be considered for the following semester.
- Such requests must be made in writing to the Office of Graduate Services.
- Applicants who request a change in the date of entry on their application for more than one semester or who request a change in the degree or major area for which they applied must submit a new application and fee to the Office of Graduate Services.

Petition to Reenter the Graduate Program

- Former students of Georgia State University who were not registered for courses at Georgia State during any of the previous three semesters, or were not registered for six or more credit hours for the current and the preceding two terms have violated the university's Continuous Enrollment policy (for details see the Office of Graduate Services website).
- To continue their studies, they are required to file a Reentry Application Form with the Office of Graduate Services by the appropriate deadline for reentry.
- The Reentry Application Form can be completed on the Office of Graduate Services website.
- Deadlines for Reentry Applications are: Fall—June 1; Spring—November 1; Summer—April 1.

Petition for Deviation from Graduate Catalog Regulations

- Students who wish to petition to deviate from College of Arts and Sciences Catalog Regulations should complete a CAS Deviation Petition Form.
- The completed form must be submitted to the Office of Graduate Services by the first day of classes date published in the official University Calendar for the semester in which students would like their petition reviewed.
- The Office of Graduate Services will contact the student's adviser, department director of graduate studies, and department chair for their recommendations.

Petition for State of Georgia Residency Status

- Definitions of State of Georgia Residency Status and instructions for petitions for in-state residency status may be found in the College of Arts and Sciences Graduate Catalog.
